Bloody Razor Marked with Sabbating Demato's Name Found Near John Galvan's-Demigorats Apathetic in Tuesday's Election-High School Orchestra Projected.

Evidence that is seemingly of supreme value to the state in the case that it is building up against Sabbatino Damato, now in Brooklyn jail, charged with murder in the first degree in connection with the death of Angelius Remello, has come into possession of State Attorney Charles E. Searls in the form of a blood stained razor, on the handle of which is the name "Sabatino Damato." The news of the startling find did not become known outside of official circles until Tuesday, but, as a matter of fact the weapon that it is supposed was used to send Remello to his death was picked up Sunday morning on the lawn at the residence of John Gahan on Elm street. Mr. Gahan's youngest son made the find.

The spot where the razor was picked

The spot where the razor was picked The spot where the razor was picked up is close by where the assassination took place. It is the presumption of the officers investigating the case that the murderer hurled it from him as soon as the deed was committed. Since October 22, when the attack on Remello was made, a search for the razor has been kept up in all sections of the city where the murderer would have been likely to go before he was captured. The place about where the crime was committed was looked over time and again; but evidently not thoroughly, as developments lently not thoroughly, as developments light in Tuesday's election. The cause of the apathy is difficult to satisfac-torily indicate. It affected both the republican and democratic parties in greater or lesser degree.

The republicans did the only work that was done in getting out the vo-ters. They had well organized work-ers and a group of automobiles to ra-diate through the town under the direction of the members of the town committee. The democrats let their opportunties go by default. They did not have a single vehicle or a worker engaged in election work, and, as one of the party leaders put it. "If the remarking the committee of the committee publicans don't win everything in this town, they can't blame us."

So It Seemed. The day after the arrival of his new sister six-year-old Bobbie crept into the room to inspect and pass upon the new member. He looked in awe about the dim hushed room, and then, peering behind a screen, he beheld a strange and uniformed nurse, who had just given baby its bath, vigorously besprinkling the chubby form from a box of talcum powder. A moment's gaze, and then, wide eyed with horror, Bobbie toddied hurriedly to his mother's bedside. "Get up quick, mamma," he trem blingly whispered. "That new nurse is going to eat the baby. She's putting salt and pepper on it now!"-Washington Star.
